

Presidential Inauguration of
Vincent D. Rougeau

THE 33RD PRESIDENT OF HOLY CROSS

FRIDAY, THE TWENTY-SECOND OF OCTOBER
TWO THOUSAND TWENTY-ONE
THREE O'CLOCK IN THE AFTERNOON
HART CENTER AT THE LUTH ATHLETIC COMPLEX
COLLEGE OF THE HOLY CROSS

Welcome

TO THE

Presidential Installation

OF

Vincent D. Rougeau

THE 33RD PRESIDENT OF HOLY CROSS

Vincent D. Rougeau, J.D.

In February 2021, the Board of Trustees of the College of the Holy Cross elected Vincent D. Rougeau to become the 33rd president of the College.

A nationally respected expert in legal education and Catholic social thought, Rougeau previously served as dean of Boston College Law School and the inaugural director of the Boston College Forum on Racial Justice in America, a meeting place for listening, dialogue, and greater understanding about race and racism in America. Prior to his role at Boston College, he was a tenured professor at Notre Dame Law School and served as their associate dean for academic affairs from 1999-2002.

Rougeau has written extensively on law and religion, with a particular focus on Catholic social teaching and the law. His book “Christians in the American Empire: Faith and Citizenship in the New World Order” was released by Oxford University Press in 2008. His current research and writing consider the relationships among religious identity, citizenship, and membership in highly mobile and increasingly multicultural democratic societies. He serves as senior fellow at the Centre for Theology and Community (CTC) in London, where he researches broad-based community organizing, immigration, and citizenship in the UK as part of the Just Communities Project.

A vocal advocate for change in legal education, Rougeau writes and speaks extensively on legal education reform. He currently serves as president of the Association of American Law Schools (AALS). He previously served as a member of the Executive Committee of AALS, and as chair of the AALS Deans Steering Committee. He has also served on the Council of the Boston Bar Association.

Rougeau received his A.B. magna cum laude from Brown University in 1985, and his J.D. from Harvard Law School in 1988, where he served as articles editor of the Harvard Human Rights Journal.

THE WHITE HOUSE
WASHINGTON

October 22, 2021

Mr. Vincent Rougeau
President
College of the Holy Cross
Worcester, Massachusetts

Dear Mr. Rougeau,

Congratulations on your inauguration as the 33rd President of the College of the Holy Cross. As the first African American to hold this office, your presidency is historic.

I wish you well and pray that your leadership is guided by the Jesuit values of rigorous academics, spiritual growth, and the pursuit of justice at home and around the world. May you, your family, and the entire Holy Cross community enjoy a wonderful inaugural celebration and a healthy and enriching academic year.

Sincerely,

KARYN E. POLITO
LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR

October 2021

Dear Friends:

On behalf of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, Lieutenant Governor Karyn Polito and I are pleased to congratulate Vincent D. Rougeau on his inauguration as the 33rd President of the College of the Holy Cross.

Throughout his career, Vincent Rougeau has demonstrated a commitment to excellence in higher education. As Dean of the Boston College Law School, he produced an impressive record, improving the school's approach to student services, promoting the recruitment of a diverse student body, and strengthening the school's regional and global reach.

Lieutenant Governor Karyn Polito and I are confident that Vincent Rougeau will continue to lead with distinction as he takes on this new role as President of the College of the Holy Cross. We are thrilled that he is making history as the first Black and first lay President in the College's history. We are excited for the College's future under his leadership.

On behalf of Lieutenant Governor Karyn Polito and I, please accept our best wishes.

Sincerely,

Dear President Rougeau:

Please accept my enthusiastic congratulations on your inauguration as the 33rd president of Holy Cross. I am certain that your experience as a scholar and leader will serve you well as you take on the responsibility of leading this renowned educational institution.

Your work considering the relationships among religious identity, citizenship, and membership in highly mobile and increasingly multicultural democratic societies could not be more timely and aligns very closely with the College's focus on building community marked by freedom, mutual respect, and civility. I am excited to see your tenure unfold and I look forward to working and partnering with you along the way.

Once again, congratulations on your inauguration and welcome to Worcester!

Sincerely,

POEM

Reading of My Mother's Pears by Stanley Kunitz
Susan Elizabeth Sweeney, Ph.D.,
Professor of English, Distinguished Professor of Arts and Humanities

Born in Worcester, Stanley Kunitz (1905-2006) was U.S. Poet Laureate and recipient of the Pulitzer Prize, the National Book Award and many other honors. When he returned to the city for a poetry festival celebrating his 80th birthday, he happened to meet the new owners of a house where he once lived, and they began to send him pears each year from a tree he and his mother had planted – a kind act that inspired this poem. After more than a century, the pear tree still stands, and the American Library Association has designated the Stanley Kunitz Boyhood Home a Literary Landmark.

MY MOTHER'S PEARS

Plump, green-gold, Worcester's pride, transported through autumn skies
in a box marked HANDLE WITH CARE

sleep eighteen Bartlett pears, hand-picked and polished and packed
for deposit at my door, each in its crinkled nest

with a stub of stem attached and a single bright leaf like a flag.

A smaller than usual crop,
but still enough to share with me,
as always at harvest time.

These strangers are my friends
whose kindness blesses the house
my mother built at the edge of town

beyond the last trolley-stop when the century was young, and she proposed, for her children's sake,

to marry again, not knowing how soon
the windows would grow dark and the velvet drapes come down.

Rubble accumulates in the yard,
workmen are hammering on the roof,
I am standing knee-deep in dirt

with a shovel in my hand.
Mother has wrapped a kerchief round her head,
her glasses glint in the sun.

When my sisters appear on the scene,
gangly and softly tittering,
she waves them back into the house

to fetch us pails of water,
and they slip out of our sight
in their matching middy blouses.

I summon up all my strength to set the pear tree in the ground, unwinding its burlap shroud.

It is taller than I. "Make room for the roots!" my mother cries,
"Dig the hole deeper."

CUTBERTO GARZA, M.D., PH.D.,

Professor Emeritus, Cornell University

Dr. Cutberto Garza is an internationally recognized expert on infant and maternal nutrition. He received his B.S. from Baylor University in 1969, an M.D. from Baylor College of Medicine in 1973, and his Ph.D. from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 1976.

Dr. Garza served as director of the Division of Nutritional Sciences at Cornell University from 1988 to 1998, and as vice provost of Cornell University from 1998 to 2000. His most recent active academic appointments were as university professor at Boston College, and visiting professor at George Washington University's and Johns Hopkins University's schools of public health. He also served as a visiting scholar in residence, Nuffield Department of Obstetrics & Gynecology and Oxford Maternal & Perinatal Health Institute, Green Templeton College, University of Oxford. Other previous academic appointments include professor of pediatrics at Baylor College of Medicine, professor of nutrition at Cornell University, and provost of Boston College.

His major research interests are in pediatric and maternal nutrition. He has worked with the United Nations University as Director of the UNU Food and Nutrition Program, the World Health Organization, and other international and national organizations. As chair of the WHO Steering Committee, he helped to develop the current WHO Child Growth Standards.

Dr. Garza chaired the Expert Panel on Identifying Research Needs for Assessing Safe Use of High Intakes of Folic Acid, National Institute of Environmental Sciences and the Office of Dietary Supplements, National Institutes of Health. He recently chaired the American Society for Nutrition's expert panel on Ensuring Public Trust in Nutrition Science. He is currently a member of the Board of Trustees for Helen Keller International, the editorial board of Annual Reviews of Nutrition, and the National Academy of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine Food Forum.

In 1998, Dr. Garza was elected a member of the National Academy of Medicine, and, in 2001, he was appointed National Associate of the National Academies of Sciences.

The Founding of Holy Cross

From the beginning of his tenure as the second Bishop of Boston, Benedict Joseph Fenwick of the Society of Jesus longed to establish a Catholic college within the boundaries of his all-New England diocese. Catholics in great numbers, fleeing religious persecution and famine, and seeking economic opportunity, were pouring into the region. He recognized the need to educate them and to provide priests for his growing number of parishes as a major challenge of his episcopacy.

The location in Worcester was fortunate. Other sites had been considered, but here, in 1836, Rev. James Fitton purchased 52 acres of land on Pakachoag Hill and began an academy for boys. The academy prospered but Fr. Fitton's pastoral responsibilities in Worcester, Rhode Island, and Connecticut left him neither time nor energy to manage a boarding school, and he gladly conveyed the property and buildings to Bishop Fenwick for his college. The Bishop's letters record his enthusiasm for the project as well as its location:

“Next May I shall lay the foundation of a splendid College in Worcester... It is calculated to contain 100 boys and I shall take them for $125 per an. & supply them with everything but clothes. Will not this be a bold undertaking? Nevertheless I will try it. It will stand on a beautiful eminence & will command the view of the whole town of Worcester...”

He gave the College the name of his cathedral church, the Cathedral of the Holy Cross. After returning to the United States following censure in 1838 for his role in directing the sale of 272 enslaved persons owned by the Maryland Province of the Society of Jesus, Rev. Thomas F. Mulledy, S.J. – former Provincial of the Maryland Province and, like Bishop Fenwick, a former president of Georgetown – was assigned to take charge of this project as the first president. The cornerstone was put in place with great solemnity on June 21, 1843, and on the second day of November, with six students aged 9 to 19, the first classes were held. The College held its first Commencement in 1849; the class valedictorian was James Healy, the son of an enslaved woman.

Within three years, the enrollment had increased to 100 students. In spite of very limited finances, the College was beginning to grow until a catastrophic fire destroyed it in the summer of 1852. Were it not for the insistence of Bishop John B. Fitzpatrick, who had succeeded Bishop Fenwick, and the tireless labors of Rev. Anthony F. Ciampi, S.J., the fourth president, the Jesuits would have abandoned the project and returned to Georgetown. Funds were raised to rebuild the College; the largest donation of $2,300 was made by Patrick F. Healy, S.J., a graduate of Holy Cross and brother of Holy Cross' first valedictorian, Bishop James A. Healy, S.J. This money was received from the sale of his father's estate, which included 49 enslaved people. In 1853, the College opened for the second time.

Petitions to secure a Charter for the College from the General Court of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts were denied in 1847 for a variety of causes, including anti-Catholicism on the part of some legislators. Nonetheless, the College conducted its business and awarded its diplomas, which the Jesuits had signed by the president of Georgetown. Finally, with the energetic support of Governor John A. Andrew, the Charter was granted on March 24, 1865.

The Mission of Holy Cross

The College of the Holy Cross is, by tradition and choice, a Jesuit liberal arts college serving the Catholic community, American society, and the wider world. To participate in the life of Holy Cross is to accept an invitation to join in dialogue about basic human questions: What is the moral character of learning and teaching? How do we find meaning in life and history? What are our obligations to one another? What is our special responsibility to the world's poor and powerless?

As a liberal arts college, Holy Cross pursues excellence in teaching, learning, and research. All who share its life are challenged to be open to new ideas, to be patient with ambiguity and uncertainty, to combine a passion for truth with respect for the views of others. Informed by the presence of diverse interpretations of the human experience, Holy Cross seeks to build a community marked by freedom, mutual respect, and civility. Because the search for meaning and value is at the heart of the intellectual life, critical examination of fundamental religious and philosophical questions is integral to liberal arts education. Dialogue about these questions among people from diverse academic disciplines and religious traditions requires everyone to acknowledge and respect differences. Dialogue also requires us to remain open to that sense of the whole which calls us to transcend ourselves and challenges us to seek that which might constitute our common humanity.

The faculty and staff of Holy Cross, now primarily lay and religiously and culturally diverse, also affirm the mission of Holy Cross as a Jesuit college. As such, Holy Cross seeks to exemplify the longstanding dedication of the Society of Jesus to the intellectual life and its commitment to the service of faith and promotion of justice. The College is dedicated to forming a community which supports the intellectual growth of all its members while offering them opportunities for spiritual and moral development. In a special way, the College must enable all who choose to do so to encounter the intellectual heritage of Catholicism, to form an active worshipping community, and to become engaged in the life and work of the contemporary church.

Since 1843, Holy Cross has sought to educate students who, as leaders in business, professional, and civic life, would live by the highest intellectual and ethical standards. In service of this ideal, Holy Cross endeavors to create an environment in which integrated learning is a shared responsibility, pursued in classroom and laboratory, studio and theater, residence and chapel. Shared responsibility for the life and governance of the College should lead all its members to make the best of their own talents, to work together, to be sensitive to one another, to serve others, and to seek justice within and beyond the Holy Cross community.

Profile: College of the Holy Cross

Founded in 1843 in Worcester, Massachusetts, the College of the Holy Cross is among the nation's leading liberal arts institutions, and is the oldest Catholic college in New England. A highly selective, four-year, exclusively undergraduate college of 3,100 students, Holy Cross is renowned for offering a rigorous, personalized education in the Jesuit, Catholic tradition.

As a liberal arts college, Holy Cross pursues excellence in teaching, learning and research in the arts, humanities, physical sciences and social sciences. As a mission-based college, Holy Cross seeks to educate men and women who, as leaders in business, professional, and civic life, live by the highest intellectual and ethical standards, and serve their communities, American society, and the wider world.

The recipient of numerous architecture and landscaping awards, Holy Cross has panoramic views of the City of Worcester from its location atop Pakachoag Hill, which was first inhabited by the Nipmuc People. The 174-acre campus – a registered arboretum – offers a beautiful blend of architectural styles including 11 academic buildings, 11 residence halls, a library, chapel, several athletic fields, a student center, a stage theatre, movie theater, concert hall, art gallery, and a dining hall and food court. The College hosts many conferences and academic symposia, and is home to the McFarland Center for Religion, Ethics and Culture, as well as an Integrated Science Complex, outfitted with the latest research equipment and technology.

Recent campus construction includes the state-of-the-art Hart Center at the Luth Athletic Complex with an indoor practice facility, basketball arena, ice hockey rink, and pool; the Joanne Chouinard-Luth Recreation and Wellness Center, which contains sports courts, jogging track, weight rooms, locker rooms; and rooms for yoga, spinning, and other fitness classes; and the soon-to-open Prior Center for Performing Arts, which will contain a 400-seat proscenium-style concert hall and theatre, a 200-seat fully flexible experimental theatre space, support and multi-use spaces to encourage collaboration among the arts. In nearby West Boylston is the Thomas P. Joyce '59 Contemplative Center, home to retreat and discernment programming for students, alumni, faculty and staff.
