Nǐ hǎo 你好! My name is Jinze. I come from Tientsin, home to China’s only Jesuit university outside of Shanghai. A history and art history aficionado, I am currently interning with the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, D.C. while also researching Italian Baroque ceramic paintings under Dr. Meredith E. Fluke.

When I am not studying art, I would rather kill my time by reading nonfictions, watching UEFA Champions League, and enjoying appetizing dishes. After Holy Cross, I aspire to grow as a Ph.D. in early Chinese art and a curatorial professional who shatters the bamboo ceiling in museum leadership.

Feel free to reach out to me by email at JMI23@g.holycross.edu or by LinkedIn at Jinze_M.
